

Another month, another newsletter. This month we share that we're celebrating our 4th anniversary; we are still taking people in for our study/writing group starting this month; we're looking for more volunteers to join our core team; and we tease something that we'll be revealing at the end of the month. Read on for more...

the
black women in science
network

We're celebrating our 4th anniversary

You asked, we delivered. We are back again for another Stories, Struggles and Successes on Saturday 28th May at 2pm with guest speakers, giveaways, a networking session and more. More information is available on our Eventbrite, with more exciting information being dropped in the lead up to the event. Tickets are free (but limited) so get them as soon as you can. Looking forward to seeing you there. Free tickets here

Study session starting 12th May (sign up now)

The request for study spaces and study partners has been answered! We have created a Zoom space to facilitate this. As work deadlines and exams are getting closer and closer, we're looking forward to starting with our first group on Thursday 12th of May. Please fill out this interest form to be added to the mailing list. Deadline to sign up is Friday 6th May.

Expanding our core team

As you can see, we have lots to do... so we are recruiting for more volunteers! The following roles are open for volunteers to apply to:

- Administrator
- Blog writer
- Campaigns officer
- Events officer
- Business and finances officer
- Social media managers
- Website designer
- Other

Details of the application process and main responsibilities of these roles are listed in this document. If you want to be part of the team but don't feel that any of these roles fit you, we would still love to hear from you. Please fill out the recruitment form and select "Other" when selecting the position(s) you are interested in volunteering for.

You can fill out the application form here: <https://forms.gle/BpRcpPk6ja9Iz8V27>. Recruitment will close to applicants at midnight on 17th June 2022. Do not hesitate to contact admin@bwisnetwork.com for any queries.

Roundtable series

We are planning to host a roundtable series in the near future. For this roundtable, a select few of our Members will be joined by senior influential Black women in Science and Science-related fields who can support you as you navigate your career. All those attending will be given the opportunity to form new connections over conversations and experiences. More information to follow, but if you've piqued your interest, please indicate so by filling out this form <https://forms.gle/igCDPeaEPwbyzdWL6>

Brunch Talks with BWiS

We are thrilled that we are able to continue to host Brunch Talks with BWiS every month. We are next meeting on the 21st May. See you then.

Letting you in on a secret

May is finally upon us which means we get to reveal one of our best kept secrets. Keep an eye out for more announcements on our socials and save the date. 23rd May 2022.

If you are ever looking to see what we have coming up, you can check our events calendar. We have now opened this up so you can also subscribe via calendars on Google Calendar or iCal. Never miss an event again!

See you soon,
Black Women in Science Network